PERIQUE TOBACCO.

The Reason for Its Peculiar Flavor and the Method of Curing.

In the case of perique tobacco the stripping of the midrib from the leaf causes the leaf to fall into two lateral halves, which are placed on top of each other in such a manner that the blade of one half of the leaf alternates with the apex of the other. These are then twisted into what are called "torquets."

These torquets are folded upon themselves, side by side, and are placed in strong boxes, which are about twelve inches square, and subjected to pressure.

After twenty-four hours these torquets are taken out and repacked in the same manner as before every twenty-four hours for a period of a week, the idea being evidently to subject the torquets to a uniform pressure throughout. After this period has elapsed these torquets are repacked every three days for about two weeks. During all this time the tobacco is subjected to a constant, steady pressure with a press of the most primitive kind.

I should not forget to state that after the tobacco has been placed in the press one week a black juice flows out of the box, which has a pleasant odor, not unlike freshly cooked prunes. Square pieces of cottonade, 18 by 18 inches, are laid out, and on these the torquets are opened, or, to use the term of the English speaking Arcadians, the torquets are unraveled, great care being necessary to separate each leaf.

The largest leaves are laid upon the cot. made first, so that when rolled the largest leaves will serve as a covering of the cigarette presently to be described.

The smaller leaves are placed longitudinally upon the larger ones until three and one-half to four pounds are placed upon the piece of cottonade, the ends of which are turned inwardly. The cottonade and contents are now rolled into carottes, the ends of the cottonade are pulled out and a string tied to each end to prevent the carotte from opening, and the whole wrapped in a clothesline, usually made of cotton.

The wrapping is performed in the primitive manner that characterizes the operation throughout. Use is made of a windlass and a rope; the end of the rope is made fast to the carotte, passed around a post (driven into the ground), a twist is now made around the carotte, and with each turn of the carotte the pressure is increased. This is continued until the whole of the carotte is enveloped; the end is made fast by passing it through several turns of the rope. This finishes the carotte, but, before it is placed upon the market, it is allowed to age, which is usually from six months to a year. During this time the tobacco is allowed to undergo a slow fermentation, which gives the aroma and taste that distinguish this tobacco from all others.

The amount of perique grown and manufactured has averaged, during the five years preceding 1890, 19,000 car-ottes of four pounds per annum. Wholesale tobaccoists have expressed the doubt that any modern method would produce tobacco with as fine flavor as that produced by the old and primitive manner just described.—Pharmaceutical Era.

How a King Keeps Cool.

Although one may not keep cool, it is some satisfaction to read how others manage it. There is the king of Siam, for instance. He is said to have in one of his country palaces a wonderful pavilion. It was built by a Chinese engineer as a refuge for the king during the extreme heat of summer. The walls, ceiling and floors are formed of pieces of plate glass an inch thick. They are so perfectly fitted together with a transparent cement that the joints are invisible and no fluid can penetrate. The pavilion is twenty-eight feet long and seventeen wide, and stands in the middle of a huge basin made of beautifully colored marbles.

When the king enters the pavilion the single door is closed and cemented. Then the sluice gates are opened and the basin is filled with water. Higher and higher it rises, until the pavilion is covered and only the ventilators at the top connect it with the open air. When the heat of the sun is so great that the water almost boils on the surface of the freshest fountains this pavilion is deliciously cool.

And this is the way the king of Siam cools himself off in hot weather. It sounds very delightful.—Exchange.

An Automatic Wrapper.

One of the most ingenious and at the same time practically useful among the automatic machines which have been introduced is a device which forms, fills, weighs and seals packages in those establishments where large quantities of goods, such as fine cut tobacco, soda, starch, etc., are constantly put up. The operation by which this result is accomplished, though decidedly novel, is not at all complex in any particular, the machine consisting merely of a series of forming blocks, receptacles, folders, gummers and feeders, all working in mutual harmony, so that the packages are smoothly and continuously produced.

The forming blocks successively size the paper, which instantly afterward is wrapped around them, folded and gummed at the end; the paper sacks are then plunged into receptacles filled with the commodity with which they are intended, finally folded on top and sealed.

"August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commened using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has entirely cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES E. DEDERICK, Saugerties, New York.

W. B. Utsey, St. George's, S. C., writes: I have used your August Flower for Dyspepsia and find it an excellent remedy.

NEVADA BUSINESS.

REPORT OF THE AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Secretary Rusk of the Agricultural Department has completed his annual report. He estimates that the bountiful crops of the present year exceed in value those of last year by $700,000,000. During the first three months of the present year, that is from July 1st to October 1st, the exports of cereals aggregated $70,000, and the indications are that the exports of grain this year will exceed those of any previous year.

There has been an increase of $28,000,000 in the imports of foreign products during the ten months of the present year, the increase being noticeable in sugar, tea, coffee and other agricultural products, which the Secretary says do not compete with home products.

The report states that in most, if not all, European countries inspectors freely pass for consumption, the most of animals affected with foot and mouth disease, and pleuro pneumonia, which, according to the views and customs of this country, must be condemned. However, meat for foreign market is expected the same as that designed for home consumption, and in this respect, as in others, we have met the objections raised to American products, and not only removed the cause, but have gone beyond what was asked. Up to October 1st, 1,016,814 animals were inspected; 62,672 carcasses of hogs were examined microscopically and only 1,926 were condemned. The losses to pork raisers in the last ten years, owing to the prohibition in foreign countries, is estimated at $360,000,000.

The Secretary deems it important that people of foreign countries should be informed of our resources and facilities for supplying their wants, and also that his department should keep the farmer fully informed of the markets. He also congratulates the country, notwithstanding sugar has been placed on the free list, upon the success of the experiments in the extraction of sugar from sorghum, and notes with satisfaction the general and growing interest shown by all classes in the cause of agriculture.

In reviewing the work of the department's division of chemistry with reference to the adulteration of foods, the Secretary especially notes the adulterations in coffee, which is found to extend to a large percentage, not only of ground coffee, but of coffee beans. Wholly artificial beans have been introduced in the market. These beans are imported, and the Secretary urges that their importation as well as manufacture and use in this country be prohibited. The experiments in producing rain are briefly alluded to, but there is no data at hand which would justify any conclusions on the subject.

TENNESSEE MINERS AND CONVICTS.

Dispatches from Nashville, Tennessee, indicate that a reign of terror exists in the coal regions in the eastern part of that State. The miners a week ago liberated the convicts who were hired out by contract to work in the coal and iron mines, furnished them with citizens' clothes and burned the stockades in which they were confined when not at work. Capital, always sensitive, refuses to enter East Tennessee and two iron companies, one with $100,000,000 and the other with $50,000,000 capital organized to work the mines at Elizabethtown and Bristol have withdrawn, the directors claiming that as the State is not able to protect its own interests, cannot protect the interest of capital.

The mountaineers, who released the convicts are said to have sworn that the State shall not rebuild the stockades and if the convicts are sent back to Brickville and Coal Creek they will be butchered in cold blood. The law is now openly defied and there will be bloodshed if an attempt is made to rebuild the stockades.

The miners are well armed and Governor Buchanan has ordered the purchase of fifty Gatling guns and thousands of small arms. The State has paid so far $16,800 for the capture of convicts and the lessees steadily refuse to comply with their part of the contract. The Sheriff of Anderson county, in which the mines are situated, has been requested by the Governor to maintain order or resign, and he has been notified by a committee of miners that if the convicts are brought back, everyone of them will be killed.

The situation is said to be extremely critical. The miners are determined to prevent convict labor from being employed, and mean business. They are encouraged by free miners in Kentucky, Alabama and Virginia, and unless wise counsel prevails, there will be a conflict between the State troops and miners. Public sentiment in the mining regions, is against the employment of convict labor as it is of no benefit to the community, though it lessens the expenses of the State Government and reduces taxation. The miners' rebellion against it may be the means of establishing a penal colony, where all the States can send their convicts and give them employment that will not be in direct competition with free labor.

IN THE CHURCHES SUNDAY.

Our Conscience Not Always a Safe Guide.

In the Baptist church services were held both morning and evening as usual, and the Sunday school was at 12:15. The pastor, Rev. John Barr, in the morning preached on the subject "Spirit of Christ, the Soul's Protection." Among other things he said: "If we yield to the inclinations of the flesh we can not be so good as though we are guided by the spirit of Christ. Religion is not something that we can put on Sunday and lay off during the week. That our hearts need a ruler; that we often like to enjoy sin but do not like to reap the result; that if we break a law of God we can not go unpunished."

In the evening he preached a very interesting sermon from the subject, "Religion's Claims on Thinking Men." He said the religion of the bible appeals to our reason. The bible could not teach a true religion if it did not teach a reasonable religion; that our consciences are not always a safe guide, because we may be honestly wrong the same as Paul was before he was converted. He said we must have pure thought, and then our lives and actions will be pure, and as all acknowledge the purity of Christ we should think of Him and His sinless life, and we will be better by so doing. It was hard work to think, but he advised all, and especially the young, to think truly, think systematically, and above all think honestly about their duty to God.

HYDROPHOBIA A FAKE.

SO SAYS SUPERINTENDENT HANKINSON, OF THE A. S. P. C. T. A.

He Knows a Good Deal About Dogs and Doesn't Believe That Many of Them Go Mad—Hydrophobia Is Imagination. Some of His Experiences With Cases.

"Can a man scare himself to death after having been bitten by a dog which isn't mad?" I asked Superintendent Hankinson, of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, one day, as he sat in his little office on Twenty-second street.

Mr. Hankinson is a good natured looking man with reddish hair, who is afraid of nothing and nobody; certainly not of hydrophobia quacks.

"Why, certainly," he said, with decision. "That man down in Asbury Park who was bitten by a cat was scared to death. He never had hydrophobia. He died of nervous prostration brought on by worry over an imaginary danger. His friends were all pitying him and hoping he wouldn't die, and prophesying that he would, and he was a man of nervous temperament, as educated people sometimes are, and it simply killed him. I suppose he read up in the books about hydrophobia and it turned his head. That's all there was about it. Do you remember what a great howl there was about those Newark boys who were bitten by a 'mad dog,' and who were sent over to Pasteur to be 'cured'?"

"Why, of course, who doesn't?"

"Well, it's quite easy to cure a disease that never existed. Those boys never had hydrophobia and never would have had it. The dogs didn't have it. During that excitement we went to Newark and found a lot of dogs shut up. We asked to be allowed to take them away to our stables, but the people wouldn't have it. Do you know what was done with those dogs? After the excitement was all over they were given back to their owners, every one of them. Not one was killed. Not one of them had anything worse than a fit. Why, our men are constantly handling dogs, get bitten again and again, but they never dream of having hydrophobia. It's a myth. There isn't any such thing."

A CASE OF IMAGINATION.

"Then you don't believe in the existence of such a disease?" I asked, thinking that, as Mr. Hankinson probably knows more about animals than any other man in America, he must be good authority.

"No, I don't. There may be such a disease, but I don't believe it. I never saw a case or knew of one positively."

"How about those doctors who cure it?" I asked.

"They don't cure anything. I asked a man who makes a specialty of treating hydrophobia, as he calls it, if he ever saw one single case of hydrophobia to which he could swear. He refused to answer, but he told me this story: 'A man came to him one day in terrible distress. He had been bitten by a dog; he feared madness; he could not sleep at night and was afraid he was going to die. He begged the doctor to treat him. The doctor said it was too late; the period of inoculation had passed, and it would be no good now. If he had hydrophobia there was no way to stop it.'

"The man went away, but came back the next day nearly frantic. He hadn't slept a wink and begged the doctor to do something for him. So the doctor took the man into his operating room and gave him a hypodermic injection of water—just pure Croton water. He went away, slept for the first time in two weeks and came back the next day for more water, and again the next, and was soon perfectly cured. The doctor told me that himself, and he professes to cure hydrophobia."

SHE WAS MAD.

"Why," continued Mr. Hankinson, "I've had a woman in hysterics right in that chair you're sitting in because a dog had bitten her. She wanted me to kill the dog. I wouldn't do it. Then she screamed in a terrible way. When she stopped I said to her: 'Madam, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. A woman of your intelligence! You've interrupted the business of the office and drawn a big crowd under the window to listen to your yelling, and all for a whim. Somebody told you you were going to go mad, and now you think you ought to go mad and you'll be mad if you don't go mad. You just go home and say nothing about it and you'll be all right.' And she did it."

"Another woman brought her boy in. He had been bitten by a mad dog, and she wanted it shot, she said. The boy looked perfectly well."

"Now, look here," said I, "you've been talking a good deal to the boy about this, haven't you? And the neighbors have too? And you've been telling him that he's likely to have hydrophobia haven't you?"

"Yes, of course, we've talked about it," said she.

"Exactly," said I. "You've been taking the precise course likely to drive him mad or make him think himself so. You have been trying to scare him to death. If he were to go crazy it would be your fault. How is it, huh," said I, turning to the little fellow. "You don't expect to go mad, do you?"

"No, he didn't think he should," he said. He didn't feel any different. He was a brave little fellow. So I sent them home, too, and that was the last I heard of it. The dog had had a fit, that was all. It's a shame the way people will shoot valuable dogs just for a fit that might easily be cured or avoided."

A surgeon reports that a young lady swallowed a hairpin while dressing. Three doctors said it was only imagination on her part. The hairpin was eventually found to have become lodged in the back part of her nose.

It is stated that the flesh of animals killed by electricity is much tenderer than if the animals are killed in the ordinary way. This is especially the case in regard to fowls.

BACILLI IN BLOOD.

Recent experiments as read before the last Congress of Surgeons at Berlin, leave no doubt that the true way to CLEAR THE SYSTEM OF MICROBI is through the pores of the skin. It has been found that a remedy which kills the Microbi will also destroy the life of the patient; but it has also been found that the Microbi can be forced out through the skin, and it is in this way that the SSS relieves the system of poison.

HAVING SUFFERED much from Contagious Blood Poison, after using half a dozen bottles of SSS I WAS RESTORED TO PERFECT HEALTH, and all eruptive sores disappeared. You are at liberty to make any use of my statement that you wish.—J. CROSBY BRONX, 203 Third Avenue, Newburg, Pa.

Indian Names.

A station not very far from Pittsburgh, on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad has the good old English name of Soho. In announcing it there is no opportunity for the drunken to disguise the word as he is apt to do with the name of a place.

As a matter of fact the town not long ago the name was distinctly shouted, and it was heard to say to the man who was sent:

"How many towns in this part of the country have Indian names? Just think of it—Soo, Monongahela and Duquesne, all in one breath.—Youth's Companion
